City Visual Arts Program: To RFP or Not to RFP

by Sandy Smith

The Greenbelt City Council took up the issue of visual arts education programming in the Community Center at its January 14 meeting after considering several options, but they decided to gather more information and then to hold a work session on February 4 to discuss the issue in detail. Council also heard plans for Peace Month to be held in October 2002 and the results of a campaign to support a community pledge fostering a more peaceful and non-violent community. They also supported the idea of a Youth Open Forum.

Visual Arts Programming

City staff has drafted a Request for Proposal for visual arts education programming at the Community Center, which it presented to council for consideration. However, both staff and the Arts Advisory Board recommend against issuing the RFP at this time. They consider the current program successful and that a change at this time would be detrimental. The Arts Advisory Board stated that "the current arts program shows quality, diversity, and increasing attendance." Staff pointed to "more programs, a more diverse staff, and better customer service," which has resulted in higher participation levels than in the past.

While pleased to hear this review of the program, councilmembers opted to wait for a detailed six-month report which is being prepared before making a decision to issue or not to issue an RFP. Councilmember Thomas

White felt that he needed more information. He asked that the report include specifics, such as a detailed outline of staff and services provided, detailed outline of the programs actually provided and numbers of participants at each, as well as an accounting of the city services and support provided the program. City Manager Michael McLaughlin indicated that the report would cover all of these points.

Mayor Judith Davis reminded the other councilmembers that they had been very clear that an RFP would be issued for the second year of programming when council approved the current program, since it was a marked departure from the previous operations. She said that if council chose not to require an RFP now, they would need to justify why this is the best course.

Councilmember Rodney Roberts felt that an annual bidding process was probably not necessary. He felt that the city needed to be assured that those who want to participate are able to do so but that that may be done without a formal process each year. McLaughlin responded that the city "did its darndest" to present any type of program that a provider can offer and their citizens want. He also thought that a full annual process was not necessary and indicated that the draft RFP contained an option for extensions.

Bill to Dispose of BARC Is Still Alive in the Senate

by Elaine Skolnik

When U.S. Senators were recently unable to reconcile their differences on Farm Bill S-1731, the bill was pulled from the floor. Consequently, the bill still retains the language permitting the Secretary of Agriculture to "by sale dispose of all or any part of any right or title in land . . . facilities or equipment in the full control of the Department (including land and facilities at the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center [BARC] . . .)."

Reintroduction of the Farm Bill, along with revisions through a "manager's amendment," must still be sent back to the Senate for debate. Senators Paul Sarbanes and Barbara Mikulski and Congressman Steny Hoyer are confident that the language authorizing the sale of BARC will be stricken.

"Senator Sarbanes and I have assurances from the chief sponsor of the Farm Bill, Senator Thomas Harkin (D-Iowa)", Hoyer told the News Review. He expects that the provision which would have allowed parts of BARC to be sold off will be stripped as part of the Manager's Amendment when the bill is brought to the Senate floor. "I was extremely disturbed that the Bush Administration tried to slip in that language and will continue to be on guard against any such attempt in the future," Hoyer added.

An earlier effort to sell and auction parts of BARC was made during the Reagan Administration. That move was blocked by Hoyer.

Mikulski is also keeping a close eye on the Farm Bill. "BARC is one of the key agencies in our country," she noted. "I know that results of its research are often crucially important for America's and the world's farmers. Rest assured that I will continue to stand sentry for BARC when the Farm Bill returns to the Senate floor."

Talks May Resolve Post Office Dispute

by Elaine Skolnik

Parties involved in the city's lawsuit seeking to condemn property for a new post office at Hanover Parkway and Ora Glen Drive are now negotiating in an effort to avoid a trial.

For decades the City of Greenbelt has assisted the United States Postal Service in its search for a site within the city's borders on which to build a larger facility. The existing post office under the Co-op Supermarket in Roosevelt Center has become too small and too antiquated to serve the expanding needs of the Greenbelt area. Finally, in 1998 the city and postal service identified a five-acre parcel near the intersection of Hanover Parkway and Ora Glen Drive as the best site available.

However, due to a legal question dealing with a unilateral covenant on the desired land, federal funding was shifted from fiscal year 1999 to 2000, thus postponing construction of the new facility. In 1991 the former owner had placed a unilateral covenant on the parcel. This limited any

Parking Policy Revisited For Green Ridge House

by Judy Bell

Many complaints could be heard at Green Ridge House on January 16 at a Greenbelt City Council worksession held to discuss the parking management program and allow residents to respond to a proposed and amended admission and occupancy policy.

The parking lot was reconfigured about a year ago and 54 spaces are now provided to serve the 101 apartments. This number of spaces includes an additional 15 spaces beyond the original 39. There is also space available for two cars on the inner circle.

The parking management program was put into place with guidelines about how the spaces could be used. City parking enforcement officers monitor the parking at least every other day, according to City Manager Michael McLaughlin. The residents were also advised to report any violations to the city offices.

Straw Vote

After an hour of discussion, mostly involving residents who did not like the current parking situation, a straw vote was taken by Mayor Judith Davis. The vote was to determine whether residents wanted to retain the current policy of open parking during the day and permit parking only in the evening, or to change the policy to reflect an around-the-clock policy of permit-only parking. Nearly equal numbers of residents voted for each option, with a small number voting that it didn't matter much to them either way.

In January 2001, the occupancy and admissions policy reflected the federal requirement for admission that had been amended to include persons who were not self-sufficient. The policy currently reflects eligibility requirements set forth by the State of Maryland Community Development Administration and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. It is required that a person be either 62 years of age or older, or disabled or handicapped, or the spouse or dependent of a person who is qualified under one of the previous categories and who will share the apartment with the eligible tenant, or a live-in aide residing with an eligible tenant.

Jim Cassels, a resident of Green Ridge House and longtime resident of Greenbelt, addressed a longstanding issue of changing the policy back to the original intent for Green Ridge House, i.e. housing for senior citizens only. McLaughlin will look into the possibility.

A provision giving preference to Greenbelt residents has been restored to the policy. When Green Ridge House opened in 1979, a residency preference was in effect. However, it had to be removed in the early 1990s following federal policy. The federal position has since changed and local preferences are now once more allowed.

Both the admission and occupancy policy and the parking management program will come up again for action at a future council meeting.

At present, 185 people are on the waiting list for Green Ridge House, with a two- to five-year wait. Of those, 71 are Greenbelt residents and 114 are non-residents. Further breakdown indicates 135 are seniors and 50 are younger persons who are handicapped.

Help Us Have More Greenbelt New Years

This Wednesday January 30 the Greenbelt City Council is having a work session on the future of Greenbelt New Year. If you have attended this event, volunteered on New Year's Eve or helped to plan this event for any one of the last six years it is important that this work session hears your ideas on how to improve it and keep it primarily a volunteer event.

The program has always found it hard to find volunteers because of the busy holiday season, but those who have participated have often come back - It's fun! If we can enlarge the volunteer pool planning the event by networking, there will be more volunteers to draw from on New Year's Eve itself. New volunteers with creative ideas are especially welcome.

We would also like to hear ways to involve more Greenbelt schools, volunteer organizations, and businesses, and symbolically link Greenbelt East and Springhill Lake with preparation events.

POST OFFICE

development of the site to an office building.

In an effort to have the covenant declared invalid so that the post office could be built on the land, the city, current owners BJB Associates, L.C. and the postal service filed suit in late 1999 to remove the unilateral covenant. They were unsuccessful. The court ruled that only an office building could be built on the tract.

In late 2000, the Greenbelt City Council voted to condemn the property, an action that would invalidate the unilateral covenant and permit construction of the post office on the site. The city would sell the land to the post office. The condemnation suit, which was filed in the Circuit Court in May 2001, is scheduled for trial on March 25. If a settlement is reached, the condemnation proceedings will be dismissed.

Walt Penney Fund To Aid Bike Safety

The News Review reported last week on the tragic death of Greenbelt native Walter Herman Penney, age 48, who was killed while bicycling on Sligo Creek Parkway in Silver Spring. He was hit by an oncoming motorist who crossed the center line. Penney was an experienced cyclist and was wearing a helmet. Police are continuing to investigate the collision, but no charges have been filed against the driver, a 23-year-old male.

The Penney family has requested that donations be made in Walt's memory to the Washington Area Bicyclist Association (WABA) to support its advocacy efforts for safe bicycling. Donations can be mailed to WABA at 733 15th Street N.W., Suite 1030, Washington, D.C. 20005-2112, or made online at www.waba.org. THANK YOU, GREENBELTERS!

The family of Walt Penney wants to express their profound thanks for the tremendous support they received from you all when word spread of the fatal bicycle accident that befell Walt.

The outpouring of support has been overwhelming, and helped to make the unbearable bearable. The half-mast Greenbelt flag, the influx of flowers, food, cards, phone calls, offers of help, words of empathy during encounters on the street: it all has been so very consoling.

It will not be possible, at least not in the near future, to thank each and everyone. So please accept for now this expression of our deep-felt gratitude to you all. Thanks again!

Greenbelt Students Donate Used Clothes

by Mary Moien

Greenbelt Elementary School students have just completed a project to collect and donate winter clothing to another school in Prince George's County. This school in Hyattsville has many students from Central America who often do not have enough winter clothing. The clothing collection was a service project of the Greenbelt Advisory Board, students who come from each classroom at the school and represent all of the students. On January 17, the board representatives were busy sorting, folding and packing the clothes to be transported to the other school.

One of the students, Erica Wainwright, while packing clothes in big plastic bags, commented "We have a lot of clothes so we should donate some." She added that she hopes that the board members get to go on some field trips this year and that members want to "make this school a better place."

Donna Behe, school counselor, and Robyn Strauss, the school crisis intervention counselor, share responsibility for the Greenbelt Advisory Board. The goal of the board is to improve the school and services within the community. The board members are elected in the upper grades and appointed by teachers in the lower. Each class has a suggestion box and board members take suggestions to the board and report back on the meetings that are held.

Behe indicated that one of the board's first projects was Peace Week. During that week, students tried to catch other students doing an act of kindness. Also, last fall the board sponsored a food drive in which over 400 cans of food were collected for the Salvation Army.

Military Academy Topic of Meeting

Lasley (District 7) will host a community meeting at Andrew Jackson Middle School (3500 Regency Parkway, Forestville) on Wednesday, January 30 at 7 p.m. to discuss the implementation of the new military academy at Forestville High School and to address public concerns. Students from throughout the county could apply to attend this school.

William J. McCarthy

William Joseph (Bill) McCarthy, 64, died January 20, 2002 at his home. He had lung cancer. He, his wife Beatrice and family were residents of Greenbelt since 1966, first in Springhill Lake and more recently in Charlestowne Village on Lakecrest Drive.

Born in Toronto, Canada, Mr. McCarthy became an apprentice printer for the Toronto Telegram at the age of 16, where his father was employed as a compositor. He and Beatrice were married in 1960. He continued with the Telegram until an extended strike and lockout occurred forcing him and other employees to seek other employment. Mr. McCarthy, his father and other Toronto newspapermen came to this area in 1965 where he was first employed by the Washington Post. In 1972, he obtained United States citizenship and subsequently became employed at the Government Printing Office. There, he first worked as a Linotype operator, but later worked in the finance office. He retired in 1972.

The McCarthys were one of a number of Canadian families who lived at Springhill Lake and became known as "The Canadians." He was active in community affairs, the Springhill Lake Men's Club, the Springhill Lake Boys Club and the Greenbelt Boys and Girls Club. In 1972, he ran unsuccessfully for the Greenbelt City Council, one of 13 candidates.

He was an active member of the College Park Loyal Order of the Moose, Lodge 453, where he and his wife became table shuffleboard team champions. An avid New York Yankees fan, and in later years, a golfer, he was also a member of Greenbelt American Legion Post 136.

Besides his wife, Mr. McCarthy is survived by two sons, Kirk and John, daughter-in-law Tamrica, granddaughters Nicole and Jessica, his mother, Lillian and sister Lynne and her husband Norman Ravignant. His father, Frederick, Sr., brother Frederick, Jr. and grandson Michael preceded him in death.

Services were held on January 23 at the Collins Funeral Home, West Silver Spring. Interment will be at the Greenbelt Community Church Memorial Garden.

Councilmanic Report

County Council Gives Grants To City and County Groups

by Audrey Scott, District 4 Councilmember, Prince George's County

Each year, as part of the county budget process, a certain amount of money is designated for grants to be given to non-profit organizations that compliment and enhance government services. This money is divided among the nine councilmanic districts and the councilmember from each district is given the responsibility to select the recipient groups. In order to receive the grant, the recipient must complete a qualification form attesting to the mission of the group and verifying their tax-exempt status.

This year, the groups I have selected are each well established with long histories of outstanding service to the community. All are repeats, and most have qualified for a grant for each of the eight years I have served on the county council. Some are local, based in Greenbelt and others are countywide organizations, and all of them provide valuable services to Greenbelt citizens.

Greenbelt Grants

In Greenbelt, I will be awarding a $5,000 grant to Greenbelt Youth and Family Services, a $3,000 grant to Greenbelt Advisory Committee on Education (ACE), $2,000 grants each to Friends of The Greenbelt Museum and the Greenbelt Arts Center for their Youth Theater Initiative. A $1,500 grant will be given to Greenbelt Association for the Visual Arts and $1,000 grants will be given to Greenbelt Access TV and Girl Scout Troops 2970 and 2740. Finally, a $500 grant will be given to Greenbelt Girl Scouts.

Countywide Grants

The countywide organizations receiving grants are the Maryland Opera Society for $3,000, Prince George’s Community Ministries for $3,000, Prince George’s Mental Health Association for $2,000, Prince George’s Art Council for $2,000, and Prince George’s Voluntary Action Center for $2,000. Additionally, $1,000 grants will go to Prince George’s County Court Appointed Special Advocates (CASA), which represents young children in court, and Prince George’s Education Foundation, which gives grants to schools for demonstrated innovative successful programs. $500 grants each will be given to Pets on Wheels, The Animal Welfare League, and the Prince George’s Public Safety Program, which distributes food baskets to homebound senior citizens over the holidays.

Each of these organizations have, for years, been directed and supported by groups of dedicated and talented persons who enrich the lives of the people they serve and improve the quality of life of our community. Most of them are unsung and little known and constantly do more with less without any thought of personal recognition – very special people who deserve our heartfelt gratitude.

The opportunity to support these worthwhile organizations with these grants is, obviously, one of the most pleasant and rewarding aspects of my council position, and one I will surely miss when I leave office next November. These are the last grants I will be presenting and I do so with tremendous humility and great respect and appreciation for the work of the non-profits in our community. It is my hope that the grants will not only enhance their programs, but will magnify and multiply their efforts and encourage financial support from other sources. There are no restrictions on the grants. They can be used as matching funds or as seed money to explore new and innovative approaches to funding and services. One thing each of the recipient’s share is insufficient funding to meet the needs of their constituent groups. I realize the grants are small and relatively insignificant when compared to the overwhelming needs of these non-profit service groups, but, hopefully, they will do some good, and, hopefully, you will agree that I have chosen well.

did not want the RFP to be issued “if we’re not serious” about soliciting bids. He also wanted more information and questioned whether the fiscal year cycle was best for providers of arts programming. He suggested that other options could be available if desirable.

Finally, council decided to wait to see the official six-month report on the program and hold a work session on February 4. At that time they would go over the report as well as consider recommendations from the Arts Advisory Board and the city staff.

Peace Month

Kevin Hammett, chair of the Community Relations Advisory Board (CRAB), presented an evaluation of last year’s Peace Month and discussed plans to expand the program this year. Peace Month is held in conjunction with Eleanor Roosevelt High School. CRAB recommends continuing this partnership but also expanding the program to involve other city organizations and groups, and to hold Peace Month each year in October.

CRAB suggests that the city facilitate a process to involve others and hold a meeting this spring to inform other city groups and encourage participation. Individual groups would hold separate activities during the month and the city could offer some overall coordination, publicity and meeting space if needed.

There was unanimous support for this activity as well as for the community pledge which was developed and circulated for signatures during the last Peace Month. Plans now call for a small poster or plaque as some form of permanent display of the pledge. These could be displayed throughout the community. At the same time, council urged CRAB to think of ways that the process of signing and supporting the pledge could continue. Mayor Davis summed it up when she said that Peace Month “was a good start with a good focus.”

Youth Open Forum

Mayor Davis also led support for an idea she proposed, a Youth Open Forum, similar to the successful annual senior citizen forum. She felt it would be a good idea to offer young people the opportunity to voice their interests and suggestions, concerns and problems about the city and city services. The forum would bring together Greenbelt youth, the public in general, and city staff members from each of the major departments to discuss and address these issues. Council approved this forum.

Petitions

Elizabeth Barber of Ridge Road presented a petition requesting the city’s assistance in getting a safe pedestrian crossing on Greenbelt Road, from Southway to Greenway Center. She asserted that it was “risking your life” to cross the road as she held up three pages of signatures. She noted how many Greenbelt citizens walked--or tried to--from Southway to Greenway Center and that the situation needed a complete solution from the crossing to a safe sidewalk.

Mayor Davis said that this is not a new issue for the city and that much work actually has been done to secure changes to improve pedestrian access to the bus stop on Greenbelt Road.

Councilmembers have met with the State Highway Administration and plans are underway for a pedestrian crossing and sidewalk. Roberts said that the city has been urging fast action by the State. Both said the petition would be helpful and would be provided to the State to show citizen interest and concern.

Other issues

Except for the placement of a few pesky commas debated by the mayor and councilmember White, council easily approved a letter of support for additional funding for the Naturally Occurring Retirement Community Supportive Services Center and a letter in opposition to a plan to locate a corrections center in Hyattsville. However, council requested that city staff strengthen a letter to State Transportation Secretary John Poscari opposing plans for a Maglev train to run between Baltimore and Washington. Council has expressed its concern to State officials about the adverse environmental impact of the proposed routes but councilmember Roberts thought that the letter needed more information, a stronger position, and should be more specific in opposition to a route which he thought could jeopardize BARC. Other councilmembers supported him and Mayor Davis asked that the letter also be sent to other communities on the train route to alert them and gain their support.

Davis thought that this was a good topic for meeting with Federal legislative representatives. She suggested that a meeting to discuss this and other topics be organized for the near future.

ACE Meeting Concentrates On Bill to Aid Developers

by Mary Moien

The Greenbelt Advisory Committee on Education (ACE) held its first meeting of the year on January 7. Sylvia Lewis attended briefly to talk about CB-40, a bill adopted by the County Council covering restrictions that have been placed against developers. Lewis is the local representative of a grass roots effort to get petition signatures in order to take this bill to referendum so that county voters can decide whether or not this legislation should be enacted. The bill would dramatically reduce fines and restrictions previously placed on developments that would cause overcrowding in area schools. Although supported by all but two members of the Prince George's County Council, this bill is opposed by all members of the Greenbelt City Council and the Prince George's County PTSA Board.

SHL Elementary

ACE Chair Leta Mach mentioned that school board representative Jim Henderson was conducting a meeting that evening at Springhill Lake (SHL) Elementary School regarding boundary changes that will occur when the Berwyn Heights school reopens. Many students will be affected, including the French Immersion Program at Greenbelt Middle School, the future location of SHL 6th graders, and the small group of SHL residents who attend Oakcrest Elementary as their home school. Mach offered to speak with Linda Sherwood, SHL principal, regarding her position on this issue.

ACE Job Fair

All committee members were impressed with the excellent attendance and excitement generated by the ACE-sponsored job fair for county school bus drivers and other school staff held in December. Over 100 people came to seek positions. There was discussion about holding a job fair again next year.

ACE Reading Club

Mach reported on the ACE Reading Club including school involvement, videotaping schedules and the new "contest" called "Why Is Reading Fun?" Group discussion explored the difficulties with the grant process and receipt of promised funds to assist with projects. There was a suggestion that the Greenbelt City Council might help ACE to reach out for further support, perhaps through Senator Leo Green. Local businesses and organizations may also be contacted for financial support.

Fundraiser

ACE members had discussed a possible fundraiser for ACE activities and scholarships. Committee members Jim Inzeo and Mach, as well as Mayor Judith Davis, met with Beltway Plaza management and merchants about this possibility. An event at Beltway Plaza is being planned for Sunday, April 12, that would include various competitions and games for community participation. Details are being finalized.

Principals' Meeting

An annual meeting for principals is scheduled for Monday, February 4, in the City Council Chamber. All Greenbelt area principals and vice principals will be invited to discuss issues related to their schools.

Mad Scientist Seeks Science Fair Judges

Pam Bauer, the science coordinator at Greenbelt Elementary School, became a mad scientist disguised as a rabbit in a hat. She visited each classroom to motivate students to enjoy science and participate in the school's Science Fair on February 26.

Bauer demonstrated color patterns formed by Willy Wonka's Gobstopper candy when placed in water, and how to use an ordinary drinking straw to pierce a raw potato. She noted that observations and predictions are key elements of the scientific process.

She needs volunteers to listen to the students explain their science fair projects, any time from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Tuesday, February 26. Please leave a message for her at the school on 301-513-5911, send a fax to her at 301-513-5319, or call David Lange on 301-577-3686.

Renovated Research Building Dedicated at BARC

A newly-renovated research facility focusing on managing plant diseases was dedicated on Wednesday, January 23, at the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Henry A. Wallace Beltsville Agricultural Research Center (BARC). The dedication ceremony for Research Building 004 took place in the auditorium of Building 003, which adjoins it.

Renovations to the 1936 building were originally begun in 1997 as part of an ongoing BARC modernization effort. But just two months short of completion, in January 1998, the building was ravaged by a fire that destroyed the roof and caused considerable water damage. The building had to be gutted and a new, steel-framed roof installed. Last September, disaster struck again when a tornado ripped through Beltsville and damaged the building's new roof.

The dedication marked the re-opening of a building that has been unusable since 1996. It will primarily house the Molecular Plant Pathology Laboratory, where scientists develop methods for detecting and controlling crop-destroying microbes. Their current major projects include mapping the genome of a micro-organism that causes corn stunt disease.

Congressman Steny H. Hoyer and Edward B. Knipling, acting administrator for the Agricultural Research Service and other USDA officials attended the dedication.

Established in 1910, BARC has the largest concentration of agricultural researchers in the world. The Agricultural Research Center is USDA's principal scientific research agency. The federal facilities that make up BARC represent an important component of the state and county's technology sector.

Hear Gospel Music At Riversdale House

Riversdale House Museum presents Coming Home: an Afternoon of Gospel Music Celebration, by the St. Paul Baptist Church Music Ministry on Sunday, January 27 at 2 p.m. There is a fee (children under 12 free).

St. Paul Church was organized on October 19, 1866 in the cabin of former slave Adam Francis Plummer on the Riversdale estate. The church soon outgrew the cabin at Riversdale and moved to Bladensburg for over a century before relocating to the Capitol Heights area roughly 30 years ago.
